SERBIA YIELDS TO ULTIMATUM, AVERTING FEAR OF WORLD WAR

Submission to Demands of Austria Announced as Dual Monarchy Prepares to Order Invasion.

Tenseness Relieved After Day of Depression in Stock Markets of the European Powers.

VIENNA, July 25.—Tenseness in the Austria-Serbian situation was relieved late today when Serbia formally announced its submission to Austria's note.

LONDON, July 25.—From authoritative Vienna sources came this afternoon reports that Serbia has called upon Austria for additional time in which to reply to the ultimatum of the latter government, which demanded an answer by 6 o'clock. Backing Serbia in the request for a time extension is Russia, which is involved with the Balkan country in the crisis that may throw all Europe into war.

Plea for Time Denied. The Neue Presse press in Vienna this afternoon printed a Belgrade dispatch in which it was asserted that the Serbian government is disposed to accede to the demands of the ultimatum, but not without such protest as will make future discussion of the note possible. Another dispatch received from the Austrian capital states that the Russian charge d'affaires in Vienna had asked that the time limit, in which Serbia must reply to the Austrian note be extended and his request was denied.

The Austro-Hungarian government, however, has clearly indicated that any other powers to intervene in the crisis brought about by the demands on Serbia will be regarded as an act of aggression, and all arrangements for crossing the border, the moment the ultimatum is finally rejected, have been made.

Stocks Are Depressed. American issues suffered in the general depression of the London market today. Canadian Pacific showed a decline of 3/4 at the opening. Union Pacific was off 1/4.

In every capital of Europe the gravest concern is expressed. Even though every effort should be made to localize a conflict between Austria and Serbia, it is generally regarded that all Balkan states would certainly be involved. Montenegro has declared its intention of supporting Serbia. Whatever action Russia may take, she will have the support of England and France. It was declared today that Germany has clearly indicated that any interference upon the part of Russia will be resented by the Kaiser's government, and the Kaiser's army will be ready to join their regiments at twenty-four hours' notice.

Austria Calls Reservists. All Austrian and Hungarian reservists living abroad have been warned by the army authorities at Vienna to be ready to join their regiments at twenty-four hours' notice.

Col. Von Bremen says at Berlin: "The Serbian army will fully occupy the attention of a very large proportion of the Austrian army."

Hard, bitter fighting is in prospect. The total Serbian army numbers 250,000 infantry, 5,500 cavalry and 24 guns. Thus, while the numbers are very considerable, one must reckon on good soldierly and notable achievements. The Serbian troops are very effective. The discipline and spirit of the army have been making steady progress. Mobilization is well prepared and should be finished on the fifth day.

Similarly, the Berlin foreign press military expert says that the Serbian material and men are very good, mobilization is well prepared and the reservists have been ready for some time past.

The conservative Berlin Post, which declares "there never was a European war nearer than in these days, doubts whether Austria can rely on its Czech and Slav regiments and considers she may have miscalculated odds in her favor."

It is stated that Germany was not consulted regarding the Austrian note to Serbia before its delivery, but that she thoroughly approved the step taken and was prepared for all the consequences that might ensue from it.

Will Try to Localize War. The efforts of European diplomacy, should the powers fail to avert the threatened war, will be devoted to localizing it. Montenegro has indicated her readiness to support Serbia in the event of an Austrian attack. Austria, Germany and Italy, with the possible military intervention on behalf of Serbia, Austria would run great risks of unleashing among her own great Slav population.

IN CONGRESS TODAY.

SENATE. Met at 11. Consideration of trade commission bill resumed. Senator Owen, chairman of the Banking Committee, expected to return to Washington tonight. Roosevelt will not appear on Colombia treaty. Treaty to be put over to next session.

FIGURES IN TRAGEDY

MR. AND MRS. EUGENE M. NEWMAN. The Husband Was Killed by the Wife's Father in the Haverstraw, N. Y., Town Hall. The Pair Had Elope. The Slayer Was the Town Clerk and Political Boss.

"UNWRITTEN LAW," CLEARY'S DEFENSE

Father of Slain Bridegroom Works to Save Slayer From Electric Chair.

HAVERSTRAW, N. Y., July 25.—Backed by powerful and wealthy political friends, William V. Cleary, eighteen-year-old Eugene M. Newman, his daughter's husband of six days, will base his defense on "unwritten law," and a plea that he was wild with drink, to which he turned in his brooding. This is the belief expressed by friends of Cleary after they had visited him in his cell at New City.

Strangest among the features of this dramatic tragedy is the declaration that Fred Newman, father of the slain lad, a former schoolmate, bosom friend, and close political ally of Cleary's, will work against the conviction of his son's slayer on a first-degree murder charge. The father, with the wealth and power of political and personal friends to aid him, insists that Cleary must be punished, but he frankly says he will be satisfied with a term of years and not the electric chair for Cleary.

District Attorney Gegan today went over the testimony adduced at yesterday's preliminary inquiry. Every point of this evidence—given by friends and business associates of Cleary, who were in Cleary's office when young Newman was killed, showed that the boy never had a chance for his life. He had called upon Cleary to tell him of the elopement, and Cleary's daughter, Bernard J. Fox, fire chief, and Cleary's political ally, Joseph Peller, town supervisor and Hugh Sheridan, policeman, were the three eye-witnesses. The sworn testimony of all three agreed, in minutest detail, on the following points:

Young Newman entered Cleary's office and sat down, at the suggestion of Cleary, near a window, without a word. Cleary calmly arose from his desk, unlocked his safe, extracted a revolver, and turning to the boy said: "You thought you got the best of me, well, I've got you now."

As Cleary finished talking, he fired four bullets at Newman. Two entered Newman's breast near the heart. A third crashed into his brain. The fourth seared a tearing wound across the boy's chest as he dropped forward, dead.

Warlike Dispatches Intensify Excitement

BERLIN, July 25.—Newspaper extras containing warlike dispatches from Vienna and St. Petersburg today intensified the excitement and suspense in financial, governmental, and military circles as a result of the ultimatum from Austria which Serbia must answer by 6 o'clock. The Bourse continued panicky, and there were heavy withdrawals from all banks. The government today declared it was unable to give assurances which might serve to allay the extreme fears of a conflict of serious proportions. In Berlin, as well as other capitals, orders are being prepared for military movements. They will be withheld, however, pending developments. Germany is now awaiting action by Russia, and should the latter support Serbia, the Kaiser's government will immediately back up Austria in the demands upon Belgrade.

WARBURG WISHES NAME WITHDRAWN, PRESIDENT IS TOLD

Humiliated and Unwilling to Continue Fight, Declare Friends of Banker.

ALSO BELIEVES THAT HIS USEFULNESS IS IMPAIRED

Senate Still Waiting for Definite Information Regarding Appearance.

The Senate still waited today for a definite statement regarding the appearance of Paul M. Warburg, nominee for the Federal Reserve Board, before the Banking Committee.

In the absence of specific information that Mr. Warburg intends to appear before the committee and allow himself to be subjected to examination, the impression is strong here that he soon will be eliminated from consideration and his name withdrawn from the Senate.

Not Expected to Appear. Friends of Mr. Warburg are said to have advised the Administration that he will not allow further use of his name; that he feels he has been subjected to a humiliating experience and is unwilling to go through it further; and that he believes he could not serve with satisfaction on the board now, in view of the bitter controversy which has arisen over him.

It is said the White House statement that Mr. Warburg would be expected to decide quickly whether he would appear, was not made until it was felt quite certain he did not intend to appear.

Other Nominees Sought. It is understood the White House is canvassing the field for men available to take the place of both Jones and Warburg. Secretary McAdoo and Comptroller of the Currency John Skelton Williams are doing the same thing.

Senator Owen, chairman of the Banking Committee, who has been abroad, was due to reach New York this morning. He is expected in Washington tonight. He has been away in the stress of the fight over Jones. He is friendly to Warburg and some of the friends of Warburg in the Senate think it possible that with Owen as chairman of the committee, the New York banker might be willing to appear before it.

Confirmation Doubtful. The view is general, however, in all quarters in the Senate that Warburg will not consent to come before the Banking Committee. One reason for this is that it is by no means certain he could be confirmed. If he did appear, his opponents are ready for the hardest kind of fight against him, and in making that fight they put him deep into the financial past of Kuhn, Loeb & Co.

Senator Hitchcock, acting chairman of the Banking Committee, was out of the city today. He has gone to Long Island, and will be with his family over Sunday. Senator O'Donoghue conferred with Warburg at White Sulphur Springs, has not yet returned.

FIRST VILLA BRIGADE STARTS FOR CAPITAL

Gen. Raul Madero's Command Leaves Chihuahua—Corps Chief to Go Wednesday.

CHIHUAHUA, Mexico, July 25.—The movement of Gen. Francisco Villa's army toward Queretaro and Mexico City has begun.

The first train carrying the Brigada Ortega, commanded by General Raul Madero, pulled out of Chihuahua early today. The movement will soon be general, as other brigades are preparing to start. General Maclovio Herrera's troops are enroute to Parral and the brigades of Villa and Zarragoza are setting ready. Villa himself is due here from Guerrero today. He has allowed his staff to go on ahead, and he will leave the railroad about here making hand grenades. Nearly a carload of these have been sent south.

PARENTS OBJECT TO DRAWBACKS AT GUARD CAMP SITE

Fear Undertow, Prickly Pear, and Russian Thistle at Virginia Beach.

COL. PARMERTER DEPLORES BOTANIST'S CIRCULAR

Declares Men's Good Sense Will Keep Them From Accident and Discomfort.

Parents and relatives of many members of the District National Guard object to the approaching encampment at Virginia Beach, because of the dissemination of an official memorandum reciting the drawbacks of the camp site. The memorandum gives insistent warning of the danger of undertow that is most always present at Virginia Beach, and members of the militia are warned to be careful while in bathing.

The memorandum also tells of the presence of an agricultural scourge, the prickly pear, and of another weed pest, the Russian thistle, both of which are declared to be abundant. They are not dangerous to life, but either can cause exceeding discomfort. The prickly pear is a dwarf cactus form, loaded with sharp spines. The Russian thistle sticks a myriad of tiny burning spurs above the sands.

Botanist Issues Warning. The memorandum gives a reprint of a letter from Fred J. Braedle, a botanist, who has examined the country about Virginia Beach. He reported to the State authorities and the Department of Agriculture the presence of a scourge in the form of Russian thistle, he said. Mr. Braedle sent his letter to militia headquarters, he said, and the militia headquarters, he said, declared, will penetrate any clothing, and is extremely hard to dislodge, and causes acute discomfort when it comes in contact with bare feet.

Upon the request of a militiaman's parent, the subject was taken up with Colonel Parmerter, the adjutant general of the militia. Colonel Parmerter deplored the publication of the circular. He said that it was featured much more than it should have been, and that in his opinion there was no such crop of the medicinal weeds as set forth. The letter, he said, came to him, and was referred by him to another office, he expected that that would be the last of the matter. The memorandum was not published by his order or authority, and he said he was much surprised at seeing it issued.

With regard to the dangers of the bathing beach, Colonel Parmerter said: "I cannot understand all this. Virginia Beach is a recognized resort, where bathing is indulged in constantly. Of course, there are places where it is dangerous to go. These should be avoided. The subject was informed where they may be permitted to bathe, and there will be men and boats on duty to render aid."

Must Use Sense. "We can't tell men what to do, but we cannot give them sense. If a man chooses to go out to his death, he must take the consequences. If he goes to the beach, he may possibly drown, but under the same conditions he might drown here in the Potomac. It is dangerous to go. These should be avoided. The subject was informed where they may be permitted to bathe, and there will be men and boats on duty to render aid."

"The same thing applies with regard to bathing. These are men we are talking about, and they are to be treated like men, not like boys. A great deal of their own comfort, safety, and so forth, rest with their own exercise of sense. I am sorry that the memorandum was sent out for my mind, it overdraws the lack of perfect conditions at the camp site, and has probably given a false idea of dangers and discomforts which may be encountered."

BURIED ALIVE 15 YEARS

That, in effect, was the fate of a man who once lived in Washington. A few days ago he was released from his living tomb, and, for the first time, saw an automobile, an aeroplane, a moving picture show, a phonograph, and a skyscraper.

"Rip Van Winkle might have slept on twenty years more and not have missed half of what I have missed," he remarked. But of his living death this clear-thinking, level-minded man has brought a story of a first-hand experience which few could have lived to relate or retained their faculties to tell.

Suffrage Melting Pot Seeks Milady's Trinkets for Cause

MRS. ANTOINETTE FUNK.

APPEAL IS MADE TO FILL WAR CHEST

Women Asked to Consecrate Most Precious Keepsakes for Sake of Sisters.

The melting pot has come to Washington.

A call to the women of the Capital and of the nation to pour their gold and silver trinkets into a huge melting pot to finance suffrage campaigns that will be waged in seven States next fall, has been issued by the campaign committee of the National Woman Suffrage Association.

In the whirl of the suffrage campaign being waged by women throughout the land, there has arisen the necessity which has staggered many men in political campaigns. It is the real need for real money. To meet this emergency has come the melting pot. Mrs. Antoinette Funk, who is now in this city, is credited with being the originator of the idea, and she is going to devote most of her time to carrying it through.

A "ringing appeal" to the women of America to listen to the story of the melting pot and take heed has been sent broadcast. Here is the explanatory paragraph from the "proclamation," which tells the tale.

"Women of America, generations ago a country stood in need. Her treasure chests were empty. It was a time of stress and peril. In her hour of need she turned to the melting pot. The State Department advises from attorneys for the sugar plantation said these employees were not American. This move was considered as foreboding intervention. Official announcement that Minister Sullivan will return to Santo Domingo was made by the State Department today. Acting Secretary Phillips declined to discuss whether or not charges against Sullivan in connection with Dominican affairs had been officially considered by the department. He declared that Sullivan's return could not be taken as indicating that this Government is siding with the Boras regime in Santo Domingo. The transport Hancock, bound for Guantanamo with marines for prospective Haitian-Dominican service, was scheduled to leave Norfolk today."

Peters to Quit Congress. Congressman Andrew J. Peters of Boston announced today that he would not be a candidate for re-nomination to Congress. Peters has served four terms.

Bullets Will Answer Rioters at St. John, N. B. ST. JOHN, New Brunswick, July 25.—Serious rioting, with a possibility of bloodshed, was feared today when street railway employees, who struck Thursday for higher wages, began gathering early in the business section for a demonstration.

The 700 militiamen who took over the rule of the city yesterday and patrolled the streets throughout the night were augmented today by the arrival of additional troops from Fredericton and Halifax. The guns of the militiamen are loaded and bayonets fixed, and at the first sign of disorder they will be used against the 4,000 strikers. Chief of Police Clarke, who is acting jointly with Lieutenant Stetum, at the head of the Seventh Royal Canadian Dragoons today announced that bullets will answer any act of hostility by the strikers.

National Cash Register Must Pay Michigan Fine LANSING, Mich., July 25.—The supreme court today adjudged the National Cash Register Company guilty of unlawful restraint of trade and fined the concern $10,000.

MELTING POT'S CALL FOR GOLD

"We call upon you to give from your treasure store of precious metal, from your keepsakes of gold and silver that in the suffrage campaign States where women are making a stand for political equality they shall not fail because the treasury is empty."

"Among your personal possessions there is something you can give, something you can consecrate, perhaps a little silver cup kept for love of some child."

"If the thimble of your girlhood is among your keepsakes, send it with thought for the thousands of young girls exploited by greed, unprotected by law, in the hot sweatshops of the city slums."—Appeal by National Woman's Suffrage Association.

AMERICANS KILLED IN SANTO DOMINGO

Gunboat Goes to Macoris to Make Inquiry—Regarded as Sign of Intervention.

Because of the killing of two employees on an American sugar estate at San Pedro de Macoris, Santo Domingo, the gunboat Marietta was today ordered to proceed from Sanchez to that place.

The State Department advises from attorneys for the sugar plantation said these employees were not American. This move was considered as foreboding intervention. Official announcement that Minister Sullivan will return to Santo Domingo was made by the State Department today. Acting Secretary Phillips declined to discuss whether or not charges against Sullivan in connection with Dominican affairs had been officially considered by the department. LOVE MISSIVES OF CALLAUX READ; WIFE IN COLLAPSE

Sensational Court Scene When Slayer of Calmette Crumples in Heap as Labori Reads Passionate Letters.

Justices Sit Side by Side in Spite of Challenge to Duel Sent Because of Alleged "Insult."

PARIS, July 25.—With a duel between Presiding Judge Albanel and one of his associates in prospect, Mme. Callaux carried unconscious from the courtroom, and the contents of two burning love notes written to her by Joseph Calmette before their marriage made known, the trial of the beautiful wife of the former prime minister for the murder of Calmette, editor of Figaro, rapidly moved toward a climax today.

Faints in Court. Incidents stirring the very soul of Paris broke over the court of assizes today. When Judge Albanel and his four associates took their places on the bench all Paris knew that the reading of the love notes was about to begin. Judge Louis Dagory. Then came the reading of the love notes.

"Thousands and thousands of kisses on your beloved body," Callaux wrote to the then Mme. Rainoard. The beautiful woman accused of the murder of Gaston Calmette sat crumpled, and dejected in the prisoner's box. Between violent sobbing, she delivered passionate cries, though the woman so crushed and humiliated would ward off the blows now falling upon her. It was more than she could bear. "My only consolation is the thought of you; the thought of having you in my arms at last, which was the dream of my life," she cried. "I have memories," read Maitre Labori from one of the notes.

The crowd leaned forward. The moment awaited since the opening of the trial had arrived. The liaison of the woman whose shooting of Calmette all but overturned her husband's republic, with the former premier, was being disclosed. There was a cry of anguish mingled with protest and pleading from the prisoner's box. Mme. Callaux's hands covered her face. She wept and then pitched forward from a chair.

She had fainted. The benches and spectators leaped to their feet. Two guards standing near Mme. Callaux were at her side and with them counsel for the prosecution and defense. Judge Albanel suspended the hearing while Mme. Callaux was borne from the room. The judge then decided that the woman whose shooting of Calmette all but overturned her husband's republic, with the former premier, was being disclosed. There was a cry of anguish mingled with protest and pleading from the prisoner's box. Mme. Callaux's hands covered her face. She wept and then pitched forward from a chair.

After physicians had been summoned to the room, Mme. Callaux then decided that her condition was such that her husband should be called to the room to see her. She was then taken to the room of the former premier, where simple methods of restoring her to consciousness failed, she was given a hypodermic injection of ether. "My dear R. R.," touched upon some details of politics, Callaux declaring he might be a candidate for the chamber of deputies in the general elections of 1910.

One of the letters beginning, "My dear R. R.," touched upon some details of politics, Callaux declaring he might be a candidate for the chamber of deputies in the general elections of 1910.

Maitre Labori explained after reading the letters that they were not the ones which Mme. Callaux feared Calmette intended to publish. He is prepared to fight bitterly for this point, and the contention that the editor was in possession of other notes.

The prosecution and Maitre Chenu, attorney for the Calmette heirs, declared Mme. Guerdan had dealt the defamatory of Mme. Callaux a death blow when she brought the letters into court. They would show, the attorneys declared, that there was nothing in the letters furnishing the accused woman with a motive for the slaying of the editor.

Hear Medical Experts. Dr. Charles Paul, medico-legal expert, who examined the clothing of Calmette after the shooting and also aided in performing the autopsy on the body, was called as a witness after the reading of the letters. He declared four bullets, fired at a distance of approximately six feet entered Calmette's body. The last bullet was fired at a less than six feet. Two of the bullets entered the thorax, one struck in the left thigh, and the other, the mortal one, entered the abdominal cavity, severing the iliac artery. The hemorrhage resulted in death.

Dr. Paul said the distance at which the shots were fired was determined by a rifle an automatic of the same make used by Mme. Callaux at material such as Calmette's overcoat was made of.

Dr. Socquet corroborated the testimony of Dr. Paul, having performed the autopsy with him. Drs. Hartman, Cuseo, and Reynolds,
